Ike Calls For 'Widest Possible Choice' In GOP Race

Hasn't Yet Decided On Second Term

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower said today he hasn't decided about a second term, and he issued a virtual invitation to all GOP hopefuls to plunge into the race for the nomination.

Nobody jumped at the invitation—with Eisenhower himself still a potential candidate.

Leaves Name In Primary
The President decided to leave his name in the New Hampshire or any other presidential primary in which it may be entered. But he said this doesn't mean he will run.

In fact, Eisenhower told a news conference—the first full-scale one since his Sept. 24 heart attack—he hasn't reached even a tentative decision on his political future.

When he does make up his mind, he said, the decision will be "based as to my best judgment on the good of our country" and will be announced immediately.

Eisenhower tossed out some political teasers for newsmen and politicians to toy around with. He said that while his doctors tell him he is making normal and satisfactory progress toward a reasonable level of strength, "it would be idle to pretend that my health can be wholly restored."

Life Regulated
"My future life must be carefully regulated to avoid excessive fatigue," he said.

At his last previous Washington news conference Aug. 4, before the heart seizure, the President said his health would be a factor in his second term decision.

At today's packed session with reporters, the chief executive said every citizen should have the "widest possible choice" in expressing his preference as to the nominee. He thus gave Sen. William F. Knowland of California and any other Republican aspirant a clear field for hopping into the string of primaries starting with the one in New Hampshire March 13.

Knowland has some support in both New Hampshire and Illinois. And he has ideas about running if Eisenhower doesn't. But with Eisenhower not definitely out of competition, few, if any, Republican hopefuls would want to take on the President in a popularity contest.

What today's political pronouncements added up to was continuing uncertainty. Those who want Eisenhower to try for a second term can find comfort in his refusal to withdraw from primaries. Those who think he should quit will be able to point to what he said about his health.

For whatever it means, the New York stock market dropped $1 to $3 a share immediately after Eisenhower said he hadn't made up his mind.

The market also went into a decline last fall after the presidential heart attack.

There were political implications, too, in the second big subject of the news conference—Secretary of State Dulles and a statement attributed to him by Life magazine that "the ability to get to the verge (of war) without getting into war is the necessary art."

Faith In Dulles
As for the President, he said he didn't know whether Dulles had used "unfortunate expressions" in the Life article. He said he hadn't read it, only "some of the allegations" that Dulles is supposed to have made.

But he said, too, that: "I have complete faith in Mr. Dulles... I know he is devoted to peace... and to my mind, the best secretary of state I have ever known."

Ridgway—in effect, Eisenhower said he never has based military decisions on political considerations. That was under questioning about a Saturday Evening Post article in which Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said that while he was Army chief of staff the Defense Department tried to push him into going along with "a preconceived politico-military 'party line.'"

Peace prospects—The President said there has been "a feeling of great letdown" since the high hopes built up by the Geneva "summit conference" last July. But in comparison with three years ago, he said, "The situation is not as dark in many areas, indeed much brighter, than it was at that time."

Committee To Select Dates For Flood Control Hearing In Stroudsburg, Other Cities

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 19 (AP)—Sen. Yosko (D-Northampton) said today he plans to meet Monday with a six-member legislative committee to discuss plans for public hearings on flood control measures for the Delaware River Valley.

The Bethlehem lawmaker said the hearings will be held in Philadelphia, Easton and Stroudsburg to determine the "public sentiment" for flood control proposals.

Wage Coordination
At the same time Yosko called for federal and state groups to coordinate their efforts in setting up Delaware River flood control.

"The time has come for a joint meeting of these groups so that one project may be decided upon to concentrate all efforts toward speeding the time when construction can begin," Yosko said.

Army Engineers offered one flood control program 20 years ago, Yosko explained, and are now making a survey.

The legislators of both Pennsylvania and New Jersey are now working on the problem, he said, reminding that the Incoed plan (Interstate Commission on the Delaware River Basin) still is available.

Gov. Leader last summer signed legislation allowing Pennsylvania to go ahead with construction of a huge dam at Wallpack Bend, Pike County. New Jersey would be permitted to participate up to 30 per cent of the cost and 30 per cent of the benefits.

Recently a delegation of New Jersey legislators met in Harrisburg with Pennsylvania lawmakers and said their state would like to put the paying and benefit participation on a 50-50 basis.

That plan, they explained, was still only in the suggestion stage. The Wallpack Dam is part of the vast Incoed system devised years ago but never carried out. Under the legislation, Pennsylvania may build the dam anytime within the next 50 years.

Bombay Mobs Battle Police; Reds Helping

By B. S. V. Rao
BOMBAY, India, Friday, Jan. 20 (AP)—Looting and burning mobs of Marathas fought police through the night and besieged authorities in widespread parts of Bombay state and city.

At Kolhapur, 250 miles to the south, police fired into a mob of 30,000, injuring many. There was no official count of dead there.

As the unprecedented surge of anti-Nehru violence entered its fifth day, mobs forced the resignation of at least one city's councilman as part of a general siege campaign against the government.

The first reported mass resignation was from Poon.

Reds Spread Violence
Authorities declared Communists are exploiting and helping to spread the violence that began last Monday as a rebellion against Prime Minister Nehru's decision to federalize the city of Bombay.

By official count, at least 40 persons have died in four days of the violent "revolt" against Prime Minister Nehru's government. Authorities say it is incited and led by Communists.

Nine were killed today when police fired into frenzied mobs, a government announcement said. Other sources said the toll was higher.

Some called the disorders the worst the country has experienced since it became independent in 1948.

While police and rioters battled in the streets, troops were posted at electric and water power installations, but Bombay seethed with rumors of Communist moves to cut off from the rest of India by blowing up bridges and railways. Already some rail traffic—especially that eastward to Poon—has been interrupted because of indications of sabotage.

Army Not Called
The army has not yet been called to suppress the riots and take a hand. The Bombay government must ask the central government for such aid, but the home guard is reinforcing police.

Outbreaks have occurred all over the Maratha area of the present Bombay State—roughly its southern half, where 30 million people live. But Bombay City is the most seriously affected, with street battles, looting and arson spread over a 15-square-mile sector.

The "revolt" began Monday. It was the second violent outburst in two months against the Nehru government's revision of state lines. This is a continuation of the program redrawing the map of all India to create states on a language basis. Planned to be effective next October, it splits Bombay State in two—one for the Gujarati-speaking area of the north and another for the Marathi-speaking south.

The City of Bombay, the multi-lingual home of Indians from all parts of the country, lies well inside the area apportioned to the Marathi state, but the central government decided it should be a separate unit under direct administration of New Delhi.

The Marathas demand the city as capital of their state.

Leader Won't Retreat From 50-50 Tax Offer

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19 (AP)—Gov. Leader said today he would veto a 3 per cent sales tax unless it is part of his 50-50 tax proposal. "I will not accept an inadequate tax program—and if a 3 per cent sales tax comes up here by itself, I will veto it," the governor declared.

Leader renewed at his weekly news conference an offer to approve a Republican sales tax to raise half of the Commonwealth's tax needs if the GOP in turn would go along with a personal net income tax for the other half.

"Rank Hypocrisy"
The governor, pounding the table for emphasis, described as "the rankest type of hypocrisy" the Senate GOP action in pushing a 3 per cent sales tax to a vote yesterday under circumstances that insured its defeat.

"The Senate deliberately killed the 3 per cent sales tax," he told reporters. "They called it up when they knew they didn't have the votes to pass it."

With his father, former Sen. Guy Leader, of York, sitting near him, the governor then made it plain that the GOP must accept responsibility for any sales tax—that he wouldn't.

"The Republicans are trying to work out a beautiful scheme," the governor said, with his voice rising at each word. "They are trying to work out a beautiful scheme whereby they would saddle the Democratic party with a Republican sales tax."

Leader's voice rose to a shout then as he continued: "And I must say that some elements of the press have not been totally uncooperative with them to pull off this diabolical scheme. I want to make it perfectly clear now that at no time is the Democratic party going to assume the responsibility for a sales tax."

Then in a pointed reference to the advocacy of Sen. Taylor, president pro tempore and influential GOP figure for a sales tax, he declared: "Taylor and his gang have been pleading and bleeding and dying for a sales tax for eight or 10 months. It is their baby. Let them muster the votes for it."

A newsmen asked the governor to elaborate on his statement dealing with the attitude of newspapers toward his tax views. Leader declined to do so.

A 3 per cent sales tax plan is now before the Democratic-controlled House and may reach a vote next week. Sponsored by a Republican at 2 per cent, it was advanced to 3 per cent by the Democratic House Ways and Means Committee.

10 Votes Seen

Leader said Democrats would give the GOP "about 10" votes for the bill in the House. Rep. Smith, House GOP floor leader, has said, however, there never would be any Republican votes for a 3 per cent sales tax.

Contrasting Smith's position with the Senate GOP support of a 3 per cent sales levy, Leader asserted: "It appears to be public knowledge that the real tax fight is between the Republican leadership in the Senate and the Republican leadership in the House."

The governor described his 50-50 tax plan as the "most equitable approach" to achieving a compromise. The Senate GOP caucus on Monday rejected the plan.

Under the governor's 50-50 plan, Republicans, without restriction, would develop a tax program for half of the Commonwealth's needs which Leader placed at 465 million dollars and Democrats would present a program for their half. Each side would assume responsibility for their own program, and both sides would provide the votes to pass the two programs. Republicans place the state's revenue needs at 400 millions.

Compromise Necessary

Leader said that such a half-and-half program was necessary because Democrats control the House and Republicans rule the Senate.

Instead, the GOP senators confined their tax program to a sales tax to raise 305 millions, increasing the corporate net income by 54 millions and speeding up collection of the capital stock tax by 25 millions.

On this point, he was asked if he would veto a sales tax to raise 465 millions which he said is needed to balance the budget.

"I don't think they (the Republicans) would come up with a sales tax to raise all the money because of their delicate attitude toward business and disregard of the little people," said Leader.

The governor then was asked if a income tax would constitute too much of a tax load on the average citizen.

"No, the income tax wouldn't but the sales tax would."

He then pointed out that the 2 per cent personal net income tax in the House would exempt up to the first $1,000 of income and would provide for $600 deductions for each dependent.

Loans To Brokers Continue Climb

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board reported today that loans to brokers and dealers other than U. S. government securities held by member banks in New York City totaled $1,694,000,000 yesterday. This was an increase of 28 millions from a week before, and an increase of 215 millions from a year before.

230 Pints Of Blood Given 'Skip' Price In 48 Days

DURING the past 48 days "Skip" Price has been given more than 230 pints of whole blood at Monroe County General Hospital. That figures out to nearly five pints of fresh blood for every day Price has been in the hospital. It is also about 23 times the amount of blood normally contained in a healthy human body.

Price is a hemophilia victim. He is also suffering from internal bleeding which will not heal. The bleeding is caused by an ulcer in the wall of the stomach. It will not heal because Price's blood does not contain a delicate globulin which causes human blood to clot. This is the basic meaning of hemophilia.

Each of those 230 pints of human blood has come from a different man or woman in Monroe County. They have been donated without charge to help keep Price alive.

Last night Price's condition was a little better than it had been during the early part of the week. Then his strength had ebbed and he appeared to be failing.

Yesterday—thanks to the latest in a series of multiple transfusions—he rallied again.

Today, the need for donors is again serious. Persons whose blood is Type O are urged to contact Skip's father, Karl Price, at Cresco 2866. A list of donors is desperately needed.

Tomorrow—Price's condition may vary again. If it is better, it will be because the men and women of Monroe County made certain the supply of fresh, whole blood was there to provide transfusions when they were needed.

Eastern Half Of Nation Blanketed By Snowfall; Drought Relief Provided

By The Associated Press
A DROUGHT-BREAKING snowstorm swept much of the eastern half of the nation yesterday. The snow was the heaviest in years in some areas, ranging up to 8 inches.

It brought sighs of relief from worried farmers, some plagued by the longest drought on record.

The storm also snarled traffic in cities, closed schools and coated main highways.

Spurred by a low-pressure system that moved northeastward from the Gulf Wednesday, the storm relieved serious drought conditions in the Southern Plains and across the Midwest. By midday, snow fell as far eastward as Virginia and Maryland.

Worth Millions
One Texas official said the snow was worth "millions and millions" to farmers suffering from winter drought.

Two inches of snow fell at St. Louis after 47 days without measurable precipitation—the longest drought in the area's history.

Farm experts said the drought was especially severe because it came during the winter months when fields should be building up moisture for the spring growing season.

Up to 8 inches of snow fell in southern Illinois—the heaviest fall in five years. It ended the area's longest dry spell in history.

Tinder-dry forest and fields had posed a major fire danger and many farmers had been forced for weeks to haul water for stock and home use.

Traffic Snarled
Traffic was snarled in downtown Cincinnati where snow reached a depth of 5 inches by 9 a. m. and headed toward an expected 10 inches. It was the heaviest snowfall in several years.

Cincinnati airports shut down. Many schools closed. Thousands were late for work. Numerous minor accidents were attributed to slick streets.

Main routes leading into the downtown area were closed for miles.

From 3 to 5 inches of snow was forecast for Michigan, where two deaths had been attributed to the weather by midday.

Missouri attributed four deaths to the weather.

Andrew Asks Bipartisan Tax Approach

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19 (AP)—Speaker Andrews (D-Cambria) today urged members of the house that a bipartisan approach to solution of the tax deadlock "must be taken by the House before the Senate can be expected to reply."

In an open letter to all members the speaker declared that the time has come to determine whether the will of the state Senate "is or is not embodied in the decrees of one willful man or even two willful men."

Andrews said that "Sen. Penrose, at the peak of his career, never spoke to Pennsylvania's state Senate with the authority that the senator from Dauphin County now seems to exercise." M. Harvey Taylor, longtime influential Republican, represents Dauphin in the Senate.

"The present boss of the Senate can defy individual members of the House who speak for either factions or parties but not even that boss, whatever his delusions of power may be, is strong enough to defy a House program which bears the earmarks of an honest bipartisan approach."

"Instead of Republicans and Democrats trying to put each other in the hole," Andrews suggested, "it is the present business of both parties to proceed to pull the Commonwealth out of the hole."

Loot First Estimated At $25 Million

GENEVA, Switzerland, Friday, Jan. 20 (AP)—A truck bearing $280,000 worth of gold bars was stolen here last night in a daring coup by thieves who may have come from across the French border.

The gold, owned by a private Swiss firm, weighed 551.16 pounds. In bulk it was small, since it takes about a ton of gold to make one cubic foot.

No Guards
The gold bars had arrived from Paris by air in Geneva, international center of banking and commerce in gold, and were loaded on a truck at the Geneva airport.

No guards were provided for the consignment. It was regarded as a routine shipment and gold robberies are so rare in Switzerland that guards ordinarily are not assigned for the transfers.

The truck driver drove to his company's headquarters and left the truck for a few moments. When he returned it had disappeared.

A nation-wide police search started immediately.

The truck was found empty in a lane near Geneva, barely a mile from the French border.

Loaded Into Car

Swiss newspapers reported tire marks showed the gold had been loaded into a car in the lane. A car with French license plates was reported to have been seen in the vicinity.

First reports put the value of the gold at 25 million dollars. The confusion arose over the fact that French and Swiss officers working on the case failed to distinguish between Swiss and French francs.

The Swiss franc is quoted at 23 1-4 U. S. cents; the French franc is less than a third of a cent.

The loss was first reported by French police as 114 million francs and Swiss authorities assumed these were Swiss francs. It was later determined that the French police were figuring in French francs.

Red Chinese Shell Quemoy

TAIPEI, Formosa, Jan. 19 (AP)—Red Chinese batteries today fired 2,943 shells at Quemoy and nearby islands in the greatest bombardment since the opening of the "vest pocket war," the Defense Ministry said.

Not since 5,000 Red shells rained down Sept. 3, 1954, had the fortified Nationalist islands across the strait from Formosa taken such a pasting.

From 10:20 a. m. until 5:45 p. m. the artillery of Reds and Nationalists duelled across a 5-to-7-mile span of water.

Objective Uncertain
There was no indication whether the furious exchange was a prelude to something bigger. The Nationalists have been predicting the Reds will try to seize the islands.

U. S. quarters hitherto have not considered the situation ominous. There was some speculation the Communists might be reacting to the cold reception the United States gave to a Communist proposal for talks between Secretary of State Dulles and Premier Chou En-lai of Red China. This was disclosed at Geneva yesterday.

It was thought possible that, by flexing its military muscles, Red China might cause Allied pressure on Washington to agree to the talk.

(Almost simultaneously with the report on the shelling, Peiping radio, heard in Tokyo, charged U. S. planes "in a military provocation" flew over the Red mainland Wednesday.

Dancer Wounded In Holdup, Saves Two Cops' Lives

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19 (AP)—Two police officers today said they owe their lives to the "quick thinking and courage" of a woman dancer, who was wounded in a gun duel between police and a holdup man in the Gay Nineties night club early today.

Mrs. Dorothy Kochs, 32, known professionally as "Tina LaMont," grabbed the robber as he aimed his pistol at the police, and his shot went wild.

The police shot and killed the robber, Richard Peter Stornio, 29, and one of their shots hit Mrs. Kochs in the back. She is reported in fair condition at St. Vincent's Charity Hospital with a bullet lodged near her spine. She is the mother of a daughter, Jody, 3.

Stornio, who had been living at a Cleveland hotel since last August, was a native of Watertown, N. Y. His only previous record here was for intoxication and a traffic violation. He worked as a machinist in Elyria for nearly five years before coming to Cleveland.

THREE PASSENGERS join in thanking the crew of the Northeast Airlines plane, lost for about three hours in a snowstorm, for landing them safely at La Guardia Airport, New York. With his radio-electric equipment out of order, the pilot was forced to use his compass and ground beacons. There were 24 persons, including crew, aboard the plane en route from Boston to New York. In the group (l to r) at the airport are: Mrs. John Weitz, New York City; co-pilot Louis Balestra, Norwood, Mass.; Pilot Robert Frances, Scituate, Mass.; Stewardess Barbara Crowley, Belmont, Mass.; Jerry Ferron, Roosevelt, N. Expanded Health Study Discussed

TANNERSVILLE — The regular meeting of the newly-formed Health and Physical Education Teachers Association was held Wednesday night at Pocono High School.

Most of the discussion concerned current methods for enriching the health curriculum for grades four, five and six in schools. A book study was made to find what new methods are available through texts. A list of such books was drawn up, with the names of publishers and a discussion of book contents.

A survey of the county school districts was carried out. The group examined the State elementary course of study as set down in "Bulletin 233-E". New assignments for study and report were made to members.

Topics For Study

The next meeting will be held on Feb. 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Manning Curtis in Stroudsburg. Topics under discussion at that meeting will include secondary physical education activities, class plans and adjustments needed to blend physical education into the new school features and other district combinations.

These new school organizations will result in larger administrative units and broader courses of study, including an enlargement of physical education activity and facilities in most cases.

Shipbuilding Bill Okayed

By Edmond Leberton

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The House Armed Services Committee today approved a 1½-billion-dollar shipbuilding bill described as a historic bridge to the atomic navy of the future.

"The approval of this bill is a historic event," Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) said before the unanimous vote. "It lets us see the day, not far distant, when the American Navy will be propelled by nuclear power."

The bill the committee recommended for passage includes authorization for an 88-million-dollar, 11,000-ton atom-driven surface ship and its main weapons would be another awesome recent innovation — shipborne guided missiles.

Six Nuclear

Also included in the building program, in addition to what probably will be the last conventionally-powered big aircraft carrier, are six more nuclear submarines and the plans for a nuclear carrier. Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas said his service next year will ask for funds actually to build the carrier.

He said the Navy's huge Sea-Master seaplane may be adapted for atomic propulsion and thus be "the airframe which will take aloft the first nuclear power plant."

Thomas and Rear Adm. Albert G. Mumma, chief of the Bureau of Ships, described in lengthy testimony what sort of a navy is being produced by the prospects of atom drive, eliminating need for refueling, and self-propelled weapons of fantastic range.

"We foresee that as a guided missile platform, the nuclear submarine with its almost unlimited submerged range can emerge from the depths of the ocean to send missiles of great destruction great distances with deadly accuracy," Thomas said.

Converting To Missiles

Mumma said the Navy is converting to guided missiles on a scale and at a pace "without precedent in naval shipbuilding."

Already, he said, one submarine and "numerous" carriers and cruisers have been converted for missiles and the conversion is going on fast. A new submarine is being built "from the keel up" as a firing platform for an improved "Regulus" type missile. Six carriers, including the big Forrestal, have facilities for arming their aircraft with air-to-air missiles.

Not only has ship design changed to accommodate the storing and handling facilities for the big weapons, Mumma said, but the Navy has had to work continuously on improvements in "long-range detection radar, electronic computers, special ship stabilization in certain instances, highly accurate navigation systems and other specialized equipment."

Military Asks $2 Billion For Construction

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Congressional approval of a global military construction program totaling $2,012,283,000 was asked by the Defense Department today.

Part of the cost of new military housing projects overseas would be met by the sale abroad of 150 million dollars of surplus farm products.

By far the biggest share of the program, included in the budget for the 1957 fiscal year starting next July 1, is for the Air Force which is allotted $1,137,585,000.

Total proposed military building in continental United States, including land acquisition, is $1,055,281,000; the overseas construction figure is $551,222,000; and work at classified and unspecified locations amounts to $402,740,000. Nearly 80 million dollars is earmarked for constructing 3,740 military family housing units in this country.

JCS Compound

One item calls for a $300,000 housing compound on the Naval Observatory grounds in Washington for the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and four of his close assistants. The project includes a special communications system costing $50,000.

Detailed in the Defense Department program are construction projects at 292 installations in every state except West Virginia, 42 in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone, and 8 in foreign countries and Pacific islands. California would get $169,687,000 of the building money, followed by Florida with $72,669,000 and Texas with $58,374,000.

Savings Bond Quota Topped By State

MONROE COUNTY attained 104.3 per cent of its $774,000 quota with the sale of $1,016,749 in U. S. savings bonds during 1955, according to E. H. Wyckoff, county savings bond chairman.

In neighboring Pike County, $150,495 worth of bonds were sold last year. Chairman Paul Yarros said the sales mean the county attained 108.2 per cent of its $139,000 quota.

Throughout the State, E and H bond sales reached nearly $462-million for the year. This represents 99.6 per cent of the State

Old Blue Mountain Forts Recalled In Historical Talk

By Bobby Westbrook

THE 94 MEMBERS of the Monroe County Historical Society who braved the threatening weather to attend the annual dinner meeting last night could count themselves fortunate. It was raining that January 200 years ago when Benjamin Franklin and his untrained militia left Bethlehem to establish the first of a chain of forts along the Blue Mountains.

Nine farmers who had borrowed guns to reclaim the cattle they had left behind in fleeing from an Indian raid were killed when the soaking rains drenched their powder and they fell easy prey to the Indians still in the territory.

Authority for these and other details of those first years of the Indian uprisings was George Atwell Richardson, of Bethlehem, who illustrated his talk with slides he had taken of the sites of these old forts.

The account came to life also as he quoted extensively from Benjamin Franklin's "Autobiography" in which he had detailed his experiences in setting up the fortifications.

Indians Incensed
The story opened with the scene of present-day Lehighton and the peaceful stream where a village of log huts was hit by the first Indian attack in this territory on Nov. 24, 1754. The hitherto peaceful Indians, he explained, had been inflamed by the expedition against the French, by Braddock's defeat, and by the tactical defeat of the Walking Purchase.

After that first attack, 50 houses were burned and more than 100 settlers killed in sporadic raids through this territory. The government in Philadelphia was reluctant to send aid, and the bodies of scalped victims were carried by oxcart to the city to rouse them to action.

Benjamin Franklin was placed in charge of setting up the line of forts from the Delaware to the Susquehanna using the Blue Mountains as a base line, he said. Slides illustrated the stretch of the mountains and a topographical map showed their strategic value.

Franklin, in charge of 560 untrained men, mustered at Bethlehem and then divided into three groups, one coming to the Mink, another to the southeast and a third to the present Weissport. Franklin was with the last group, and his recollections of their problems of discipline and of construction are, mainly of Fort Abbott established there.

The forts were mainly places of shelter for the settlers, guarded by a few soldiers, and in the main used existing farmhouses surrounded by stockades. They were placed both north and south of the mountains about 20 miles apart.

Fire, No Smoke
In one case, the soldiers found that the Indians had watched them throughout the building, kept warm in the freezing weather by charcoal fire in pits which gave out no smoke. In another, soldiers skating on the river were decoyed away from the fort by two Indians while the rest closed in to trap them from behind.

These and many other stories embellished Richardson's talk. He showed the site of Fort DePui, along the river at Shawnee and a drawing of the original church on the site of the present Presbyterian church.

He showed the approach to Fort Hyndshaw at Bushkill and the depression which marks its place, as well as the site of Fort Penn, now the Sherman Theatre, and of Fort Hamilton, near the Stroud Community House.

He quoted an early leader as reporting that the people were uncooperative. "Every man wants a fort around his own house, protected by soldiers, but no one wants to help."

From Stroudsburg, unable at that time to travel through the Water Gap, the soldiers erected forts near Wind Gap, and near Weir Hill, where Fort Norris was one of the largest forts at Nazareth, and Bethlehem, Slatington and Lehighton were also shown.

Building Still Stands
Sole building still standing from that period is the octagonal fort near Aquashicola Creek near Northampton, he said.

Richardson was introduced by Horace G. Walters, who also operated the projector.

Roger Dunning presided at the meeting which was opened with the State police said Horace Praetorius, Stroudsburg RD2, was treated at General Hospital for facial abrasions and was then discharged. Pfc. Evan Chaplin, who investigated the case, said the accident occurred on a legislative route near the youngster's home.

Light Snowfall Slicks Area Highways

Seven-Inch Fall Reported At Blairsville

DRIVING CONDITIONS were hazardous all over Monroe County last night after tensing snow flurries turned into ice.

To meet the situation, 50 men and 22 Highway Department trucks were engaged in the job of spreading a salt-cinder mixture over the county highway network.

A Highway Department spokesman said personnel would be patrolling the roads all night.

Mount Pocono State Police estimated that about an inch of snow had fallen there by 10:30 p. m. Flurries continued there after that hour.

Pennsylvania Glazed
Hazardous driving conditions were reported in virtually every section of Pennsylvania. The storm dumped as much as seven inches of snow, The Associated Press reported.

Spawmed in the Gulf of Mexico, the storm swirled into the southwest section of the state.

The heaviest snowfall was reported in the Blairstown area where seven inches had fallen up to early last night, Pittsburgh had a 4-inch fall by 10 p. m. and another inch or more was expected.

Traffic snarls were reported in Harrisburg and other cities.

In the Philadelphia area, highway crews were alerted for emergencies as many roads, just getting clear from a previous storm, became icy. All roads in central Pennsylvania were "slick."

Some freezing rain was reported in some sections of the state.

Lt. Petersen Honored At Okinawa Rites

NAHA, Okinawa, Jan. 19 (AP)—Memorial services were conducted today for two U. S. Air Force pilots killed Tuesday in the sea crash of their jet trainer.

First Lt. John W. Grierson, 26, Rochester, N. H., and 2nd Lt. George H. Petersen III, 22, Minisink Hills, Pa., were just a mile offshore when their plane plunged into the sea.

Two Accidents Investigated By Troopers

EXTENSIVE damage was caused to a 1955 station wagon at 4:30 yesterday afternoon when it crashed into the rear of a coal-laden tractor-trailer on Route 611 a mile south of Mount Pocono.

Operator of the station wagon, Robert McCleery, 31, Levittown, Pa., suffered contusions and abrasions of the left leg and arm and shock. He was treated at the scene by Dr. E. O. Headrick, Mount Pocono.

State police said McCleery had brought his vehicle over the crest of a hill when it went into a skid and crashed into the trailer truck being operated by Rudolph Bailey, 32, Belmore, N. Y. Bailey escaped injuries.

Car, Truck Collide
About $300 damage resulted in a car-truck accident yesterday afternoon on Legislative Route 45034 between Blackwell's Station and Swiftwater.

State police identified the motorists involved as Florence Bennett, 30, of 9 Elm St., East Stroudsburg, and Charles Albrecht, 62, Cresco, RD 1. There were no injuries.

Troopers said the woman was driving her 1955 sedan west, while Albrecht's truck was coming in the opposite direction. Either slippery road conditions or the road grade may have caused the collision, troopers said.

Pearsol Sells Blue Ridge Phone Co.

KUNKLETON—Sale of the 57-year-old Blue Ridge Telephone Co. was announced yesterday.

The phone firm is being purchased by the Palmerton Telephone Co. Merger of the two firms must be officially approved by the Public Utility Commission before it becomes final.

Announcement of the sale was made by W. H. Pearsol, Blue Ridge president. Pearsol is the grandson of James F. Pearsol, who founded the company in 1898.

Blue Ridge has served this community for many years. It has about 450 subscribers at the present time. Company lines cover an area of about 150 square miles.

Five Subscribers at First

Amount of money involved in the purchase by the Palmerton company was not disclosed by either firm yesterday.

The Blue Ridge firm dates from the earliest days of telephone service. In 1898, when it was founded, the company had five subscribers. Included in its limited service at that time, however, was a line running to Effort. This line served a single customer. It extended 11 miles from the firm's main lines in the immediate Kunkleton area.

Most of the first service was purely local in nature. By 1908, however, the company inaugurated its first long distance facilities through connection with the Lehigh Telephone Co. and the Keystone company in Philadelphia.

James F. Pearsol resigned as president in the early 1900s. He died in 1927. The growth of the company continued. In 1922 it had 125 subscribers; in 1939 the number had risen to 225; now totals 450.

Efforts to improve service have been made by the company in recent years. The number of lines has tripled since 1953 and additional trunk lines have been installed to Stroudsburg, Saylorburg and Palmerton.

W. H. Pearsol has laid stress on the service the small independent phone companies made possible to the small communities in the era when telephone communication was being developed.

Had it not been for small companies such as Blue Ridge, Pearsol said, such areas would have waited many years for the introduction of phone service in the community. Despite the modernization of phone service, it is interesting to note that the majority of telephones in the U. S. are still of the "magneto" type, Pearsol pointed out.

This picture is changing rapidly, however. It is expected that present equipment on Blue Ridge lines will be replaced with modern dial systems, Pearsol said.

County Officials Vote Against Contesting Court Decision In Pinebrook Case

MONROE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS voted unanimously yesterday not to contest a court decision restraining the county from collecting on the Pinebrook Bible Conference property.

However, the commissioners also agreed to notify Stroud Township supervisors and township school officials they will have "no objection" if either or both of the two taxing bodies wish to intervene.

Jan. 25 is the deadline for filing exceptions to the decision handed down by President Judge Fred W. Davis, who ruled in favor of the Pinebrook Foundation, Inc., headed by Rev. Percy Crawford, well-known radio and TV evangelist.

Ruled Public Charity
Judge Davis concluded that Pinebrook, which operates three summer camps for young people in Stroud Township, is a public charity within the meaning of the Pennsylvania Constitution and is therefore exempt from township and county taxes.

The commissioners took this action after hearing from County Solicitor Leo A. Achterman, who opined it would mean "a waste of time and money" if the county filed exceptions.

Achterman based his opinion on the fact that the State Supreme Court only last November, refused to reverse the decision of the Allegheny County Court in a similar case.

In that case, the Common Pleas Court held that while some phases of a YMCA program may result in a profit the over-all operation chasing Blue Ridge was confirmed last night by C. E. Reinhard, Palmerton Telephone Co. president. Reinhard said that surveys and planning for the installation of modern dial service are now being carried out.

No Rate Change Seen
No immediate change in tariff and rates is anticipated, Reinhard said. In its application to the PUC, the company has proposed that present Blue Ridge tariffs be adopted by the Palmerton firm in that area.

Monthly rates for Kunkleton subscribers now are: $4 residential private lines; $4.50 business and $2.25 party; $1 for extension phones. Rates for Palmerton company subscribers at present are: $3.75 one-party residence; $3.25 for two-party residence; $2.75 for four-party; $6.50 for business; $5.50 for two-party business; $4.75 for four-party business.

Now is the time to mark the resting place with a suitable memorial of someone you hold near and dear.

Even If Russia's New Five Year Plan Reaches Goal It Will Be Behind U. S.

When Russia's latest five-year plan, sixth of the series, announced itself as a production miracle designed to make the United States look to its laurels, eyebrows around the world must have lifted at this naive Soviet approach to what has only been accomplished heretofore in a capitalist economy.

The idea of free and unhampered competition in production continues to be anathema to the Russians, so it will be fascinating to observe what methods they intend to use in their announced plan for surpassing our capacity.

Among other items on the plan's agenda is one phenomenal one calling for a 70 per cent increase in heavy industrial production by 1960.

If they should reach this goal . . . and five will get you at least ten they won't! . . . they still would be at only two-thirds of the level anticipated by United States planners for 1960.

"B. Franklin Printer"—But World Knew Him As Diplomat, Businessman, Scientist

The above heading is how wise old Ben Franklin preferred to be known. But the world knew him in many other capacities—as a patriot, philosopher, diplomat, inventor, businessman and scientist.

The Pennsylvanian was a towering figure in his time. And even now, 250 years after his birth, the world remembers him for his wise counsel and his homely philosophy.

Ben Franklin never became President, nor did he lead troops in battle. Indeed, much of what he did for his country—no man of his time did more—was behind the scenes, in the debates and deliberations that led to the Declaration of Independence. And in the delicate realm of international diplomacy, where many a reputation has foundered.

Practically everything Franklin wrote is worth reading. But perhaps the most appropriate to this installment-buying era are his observations on thrift.

This one seems especially timely:

"He that buys upon credit pays interest upon what he buys . . . Consider then when you are tempted to buy unnecessary household stuff, or any superfluous thing, whether you will be willing to pay interest, and interest upon interest for it as long as you live."

We know of no better way to observe the anniversary than to reprint herewith some of the aphorisms that first saw print in the vastly popular "Poor Richard's Almanack" which instructed many thousands of his fellow citizens and reaped a tidy profit for the printer. They're as true today, as when shrewd B. Franklin first expressed them.

"Words may shew a man's wit, but actions his meaning."

"Look before, or you'll find yourself behind."

"He that falls in love with himself will have no rivals."

"A learned blockhead is a greater blockhead than an ignorant one."

"He that lieth down with dogs, shall rise with fleas."

"The worst wheel on the cart makes the most noise."

"We may make these times better, if we bestir ourselves."

"All would live long, but none would be old."

"Time is an herb that cures all diseases."

"If you know how to spend less than you get, you have the philosopher's stone."

George Sokolsky Says . . .

When A Guy Is Down, It's Like Retreat With One's Conscience--A Good Medicine

When one is on his back, wondering what hit him, the other thought is also liable to occur to him that somehow he is, for a time, a prisoner. All the time I am in this hospital, looking out of a narrow window or gazing at the light yellow mustard walls which seem so unnecessarily characteristic of hospital walls, I cannot help but realize that a little occlusion can bring anyone down and when downed, we all have to submit to the same regime, the same rigid rules, the same everything.

Of course, like had it a little easier than I do because he has been trained all his life to obey, while I, poor me, want an explanation for each obedience.

But in the hospitals, obedience is ever present. Even drinking water is measured out; everything is calories. When I think of that cold half-duck I ate only last week, life in the hospital is dear, indeed.

It used to be that appendicitis was the popular ailment; then they changed its name to appendectomy and people stopped having it. I don't recall any recent cases of a personal nature because most of my friends are stylish. They get what is the going rage. So these days it's a coronary, ranging from mild through moderate to severe. I have tried to discover what gave me this mild one. I had a wonderful time a night before at a 70th birthday party that Toots Shor gave for Bugs Baer, a writer of cryptic witticisms. Toots Shor I do not identify because he has done so himself in loud and lucid terms that may not always be printable. It was a gay party but I left it early and to bed quite healthy and cheerful.

The only omen came from an Irish pal, John Brogan, who out of love for me dreamed that I had died and returned from the dead, which he announced to all, and some must have wondered why if the thing happened, it did not stay that way. I threw salt over my left shoulder three times to make sure that the evil eye did not get me.

The next day, life moved as usual. I was not quarrelsome or cantankerous, only usual. It was a day of quiet reading and writing with only casual conversation with my dog, Job, on the sad state of the human race.

The next morning, I awoke at 5:30 and woke up Joe in the process. "Joe," I said, "I seem to be in grave trouble. Actually, I am choking to death." So Joe and I went in to awaken Mother because when anything goes wrong, it seems the smart thing to do. Get Mother on the job and the thing will straighten out.

Well, in due course, I found myself being punctured and tapped and banged about. And so I had gone and done it and got me a mild coronary. Nobody can guarantee me anything and I am forbidden to move, but I am writing this with my own hand as a protest against obedience. I am not supposed to do anything, just lie here and sleep. How like could stand all that sleep. I cannot imagine. Maybe, he likes sleep. I have generally avoided it as much as possible because there is so much to do and you have to be awake to do it. However, now I fall asleep with the greatest of ease. Sleep is a cure.

I tried to read Thomas Carlyle because I thought he was never very stimulating, certainly not as stimulating as Grover Whalen's "Mr. New York." I tried Carlyle on Burns, two quiet gentlemen of another century, but I fell fast asleep and now I do not know what Carlyle said about Burns, but will start all over again one day, maybe I shall not fall asleep. Maybe you will care enough to discover what Carlyle said about Burns.

I read in the newspapers that John Foster Dulles got into trouble announcing that we had approached the brink of war. Those of you who read this column regularly may recall that I spoke of that on several occasions, describing the causes and how close we were to them. When and if I get out of here, I shall look them up just to prove that I tell you about such things when they actually happen and not when they make political provender.

And so to more sleep. There is nothing ahead of me but rest for a few weeks. It is like a retreat with one's conscience. Maybe that is what it is for.

Editor, Daily Record,
Dear Sir:

The nation's anti-trust advocates are bearing down on mergers. And it begins to look as if the administration is going to give the Federal Trade Commission full sway to prosecute, fine and in some instances, imprison violators of the stringent rules of the game" which the commission proposes to set up.

Let's analyze, just for the sake of finding what brings about a merger of two firms in the same or allied lines of endeavor.

We are prone to say that these mergers are brought about because:

1. Wages are so high that they are punitive.

2. Taxes on the national, state and local level, but particularly on the national level add to the financial confusion and are, in too many instances, conducive to profits so thin that they are just on the fringe.

3. Competition where points Nos. 1 and 2 bring about a chaotic situation so untenable that the only solution is merger.

So what happens? The two firms merge. They set up policies which are designed to reduce production costs, so they can again be competitive with firms in their own lines of endeavor.

Uncle Sam says this is unholy; that to merge stifles competition which would be prevalent if the merger were not consummated.

The business man says, "we have two choices; to merge or to be taxed out of business."

In our ignorance we are bound to say we can sympathize only with the poor fellow who is forced to seek partnership with another to keep his business alive.

Respectfully,

OCM

I had intended to write before this to thank you for the splendid co-operation of the Daily Record in promoting our Annual Christmas Cheer Fund.

Time-Tested Womanly Wiles Potent In Business World

Fasten your seat belts, men. We may be in for a little rough going. Women having established a firm beachhead in the world of business by doing what used to be men's work as well as the men can do it, are now beginning to feel sure enough of themselves to start switching openly to their own methods.

For a long time employers have been stressing the point that they wanted the type of woman employee who didn't capitalize on her femininity but was willing to step into the heavy harness and tote that bale right along with the men. No tears, no eye fluttering, no hip wiggling, no ruffle flouncing. Just straight P's and Q's, deadpan toll, matter-of-fact efficiency.

That's what the employers have been stressing—loudly and firmly.

Well, the girls could go along with a gag, and they did—earnestly coached by the business colleges and secretarial schools. Most of them accepted the business ground rules as set forth in the office memos and hewed obediently to the line—until they finally wormed their way into the business world to the point where the thing no longer can run without them.

But nobody was fooling them anywhere along the line. Every now and then they flicked a hip or flashed a furtive go-go eye just to keep in practice, and it didn't seem to set back their careers any.

So now apparently they figure it's safe to haul out the whole bag of tricks. This at least is the ominous import of a recent survey of working women's New Year resolutions.

"For 1956," said one self-confident career girl, "I'm giving up tailored suits and the efficient manner. I'm taking up the little foibles, bossing pretend to hate but continue to hire in the form of perfumed, finger-fingered, jangle-jeweled young things."

And there were other expressions in that same vein—all boiling down to a cold conviction that the time-tested womanly wiles are just as potent and effective in the business world as anywhere else. So why should women stick to those silly mannish methods when they know better ones?

Well, it isn't hard to guess what that means. Flowered wallpaper in the outer office, shag rugs in the shipping room, antique stools at the coffee counter and crocheted doilies under the telephones. Perfume in the ventilating system, pink ribbons on the turret lathes, sweat jackets for the water coolers, and time off for the January white sales.

Business letters that start with "Darling" and end with "As ever." Annual reports with needlepoint covers. Crying breaks on busy afternoons.

I suppose the men can do nothing but grin and bear it. Just as they did when the barber shops got away from them.

But now hear this: If anybody plants petunias in my ash trays, I'll scream.

Book-trade journals often ask publishers to supply summaries of forthcoming novels in "35 words or less." Julien Dedman, of Scribner's, says that had this practice been in vogue in the golden age of Athens, a preview of "The Odyssey" probably would have read something like this: "Strange goings-on in murky waters off the coast of Greece. Several wanton murders by a character named Ulysses. When he finally returns home, he rubs out the suitor of his wife who was planning to divorce him for desertion."

U. S. Surplus Military Equipment Reaches Arabs

Washington, January 20.—Considerable quantities of American surplus military equipment are being black-marketed to the Arabs and the Iron Curtain countries.

That has been definitely established by the House Government Operations Committee, headed by Representative William Dawson (D., Ill.) in an extensive investigation of the disposal of such military supplies in the U. S. and abroad.

On the basis of still-unpublished testimony and other documentary evidence in the Committee's hands, there is direct connection between the secret sale of American equipment to the Arabs and Communists and similar transactions recently exposed in Britain. The same "exporters" handled many of these deals.

One of these traders, an Englishman, told investigators that recent shipments to Egypt totaled more than $1,500,000—of which a large portion was American equipment.

He listed the Third U. S. Air Force, in Britain, as one of his big "suppliers."

The unit has authority to dispose of surplus and other unwanted equipment to private dealers. A survey disclosed this particular one had for sale at that time the following: 465 jeeps, 390 trucks of various sizes, 2,000,000 cans of meat, and hundreds of thousands of trousers, overcoats, combat boots, and other items of clothing.

The Committee also has a report from Assistant Defense Secretary Thomas Pike that surplus sales last year amounted to $13,526,844.

Original cost of this military equipment was $1,466,907,540.

Defense Secretary Wilson is so concerned about the black-marketing of these supplies to the Arabs and Communists that he has taken two forceful measures to stop it:

(1) Sent an unannounced "task force" to Europe to study surplus disposal operations there in order to formulate corrective steps; and (2) tightened provisions of the order he issued last year relaxing the regulations on the sale of surplus property by the armed forces.

The congressional probes charge it was these modifications which opened the way for "leakage" of this equipment to the Reds and Arabs.

Secret Transcript — Representative Dawson's investigators have been unable so far to get detailed figures about surplus sales from the Defense Department.

The latter contends this data is still incomplete.

But the probes have obtained the minutes of a secret Pentagon meeting on the problem. It was a session of the Joint Department of Defense and General Services Administration Industry Advisory Committee on Disposal of Surplus Property.

Chairman of the group is Ralph C. Spencer, and among those participating were Admiral T. L. Becknell, Jr., of the Navy Bureau of Supplies, and Army and Air Force officers.

Significant highlights of these minutes are:

"There was discussion of the whole question of surreptitious trading with the Arabs and Iron Curtain countries. As occurred once before in these discussions, it was pointed out that the normal import-export controls of the various countries are relied upon for our protection. The State Department maintains surveillance and deals with the foreign governments in this matter. No figures were available as to the value of the materials that have been sold illegally to the Arabs and Iron Curtain countries."

"It was stated that after items are sold, the only thing the government can do is to try to check on where the items are being shipped. This checking could go on in this country by the FBI, and the State Department and related agencies in foreign countries if there is suspicion or evidence to show that the property would be sent behind the Iron Curtain or to the Arabs."

General Maxwell Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, is recorded in the transcript as notifying this meeting, "Determination of what will be done with the surplus in Korea is a leading problem of the Army."

What He Fears — President Eisenhower is very concerned over the possibility of the rise of a "war party" in the U. S.

He feels that would be "one of the greatest evils that could befall us."

That's the way he is being quoted by Robert Cutler, former special assistant to the President on the National Security Council. The Boston lawyer-banker is close to the President and is consulted by him regularly.

Cutler is telling friends he has no idea how the President feels about a second term; the matter has never been discussed by them. But Cutler stresses the President's apprehensions about a "war party" and the danger he is convinced that would mean to the country.

"If the President's health continues to improve," says Cutler, "he may well feel obligated to run again to ensure continuance of peace. That is his controlling desire, and I am sure he is ready to sacrifice himself for that."

Cutler, who has access to top Intelligence reports, makes no bones of his alarm over the likelihood of war in the Middle East and the resumption of fighting between the Nationalists and Red Chinese in the Formosa area.

Crime and Punishment

The Brink's stickup almost surpassed the legendary banditry of Ali Baba and his faceless associates. It is hardly controversial to note that such immortals of the ignoble profession as Captain Kidd and Jesse James would have been impressed with the efficiency of the operation. Not to mention the enormous loot . . . During the past half-dozen years, the crime paid generously for those who utilized it as a subject for books, mag essays and cinemas. For the criminals involved it paid off in ashes. Clearly, the perverted geniuses were chumps. They never had an opportunity to enjoy the Brink's coin. And their futures are bounded by the narrow dimensions of prison cells. In the end, they robbed themselves of something beyond monetary value: Freedom.

The Brink's job was precision-tooled. Its bold conception and swift execution rank with Brooklyn's $427,950 holdup in 1934. . . The entire operation was concentrated on taking full advantage of 2 seconds. The armored truck lugging the loot stopped at the Rubel Ice Company and opened its doors for that blink-brief period. It was all over in 3 minutes. Within 13 minutes the gang made its successful getaway.

It required 4 years before the law-breakers got their comeuppance. During that time, virtually every member of the mob was jailed for crimes in various cities.

The mobsters in the Brink's case were welded together for a single coup. They never operated as a unit again. Similarly, "the gang in the Rubel heist split after one job. Dispersal is dictated by survival. Since much coin is involved they are unable to trust each other. The possibility of betrayal makes fear constant. One of the handicaps of being a thief is that you must deal with crooks.

The more notable stickup artists are imaginative hoodlums who strive to anticipate everything. Everything, that is, except getting caught . . . Willie Sutton received heaps of publicity. He was described as a criminal mastermind, no less. The foregoing description on the basis of the record, places such masterminds on the level of third-rate idiosyncrasy. Prior to his current life term, Willie Mastermind spent one-third of his life behind bars. This is criminal masterminding? . . . In common with other crooks, he never had an opportunity to spend the savings. He was a lonely man who dwelled in a cheap room and seemed almost grateful when he was nabbed.

Willie's final job was a $64,000 bank holdup. The police made certain he flunked the Big Query. Penalty: Life imprisonment.

Bloodmobile Schedules Pike Visit

THE NEXT visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile to Pike County will be on Thursday, Feb. 16, at the Eastern Star Hall in Matamoras, according to Donald E. LeBar, blood recruitment chairman for the Pike County Red Cross chapter.

"Blood — It Doesn't Hurt to Give It but It Does Hurt to Lose It" has been suggested for a slogan to make this Bloodmobile visit the most successful one in the county's program, with a goal of at least 150 pints. The necessity for blood for use all over the country is as real today as it was during the war, according to Lewis E. Miller, chapter chairman, and the most successful program for maintaining that blood supply has been found to be by way of volunteer donors at the regular Bloodmobile visits.

Appointments for donors will be taken by captains working with Mr. LeBar in the Matamoras area. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eckert, Jr., in the Greeley and Shohola area and Donald Howe in Milford. The Bloodmobile will be in Matamoras for appointments between noon and 6 p.m. Feb. 16, with walk-in donors taken between appointments. Mrs. Robert Phillips Sr. will be in charge of transportation arrangements if would-be donors are unable to get to Matamoras.

Red Cross officials have again reiterated that the blood received by the organization is given free of charge with the hospitals making a necessary charge of administration purposes, and that an adequate supply must be kept on hand in the hospitals and blood banks for the increasing demand. Blood collected through the Red Cross blood program is distributed without charge to government and civilian hospitals and to doctors. Civilian hospitals may charge for laboratory services and supplies involved in the administration of the blood and factors may charge for their professional services but no charge is made for the blood itself.

The canteen for the Matamoras Bloodmobile visit will be operated by members of Pocono Chapter, No. 62, Order of the Eastern Star, headed by Mrs. Lee Carpenter. Fruit juices, sandwiches and coffee are given to all donors.

Selling Rush Shaves Prices Of Most Stocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—A brief but acute spell of selling today tumbled prices in the stock market.

Losses amounted to 1 to 3 points in key divisions. That wasn't a very wide decline, but there were very few plus signs any place in the list at the finish.

All divisions of the market were drawn into the selling which began in the middle of the third hour of trading and reached a climax before the start of the fourth hour.

At the worst, the ticker lagged as much as two minutes behind floor transactions. The congestion lasted around 10 minutes.

Time Confusing

The timing of the selling caused some confusion among those trying to interpret the situation.

President Eisenhower at 11 a.m. told his press conference that he had no objections to having his name entered in primaries, but he added that he hadn't made up his mind about running for a second term.

The market at that time took the statement in its stride without a ripple. There was disagreement in Wall Street whether the later selling constituted a delayed reaction. After the rush of selling was absorbed today, there was a rather good recovery from the lows. The close was quiet with prices up from their lows but under their best.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off $1.70 at $173.40. That level is around that of early November. Yesterday the market was off $1.80. The industrial component lost $2.50, rails lost $1.60, and utilities backed away 20 cents.

Four Billion Loss

Using the AP 60-stock average as a yardstick, the market in two days has lost an estimated four billion dollars from the quoted value of listed securities.

The market was quite broad with 1,221 individual issues traded, the most in four months. There were only 176 gainers while 822 stocks declined. Five reached new highs for 1955-56 and 27 touched new lows.

Volume stepped up to 2,500,000 shares as compared with 2,110,000 shares traded yesterday.

Prices were generally lower on the American Stock Exchange with

Brokers Differ On What Caused Market To Break

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—President Eisenhower said today he hadn't made up his mind whether to run for a second term. The stock market went down sharply, $1 to $3 a share.

The first four Wall Street brokers asked for comment on the two events, said:

1. Selling started because he isn't going to run again.
2. The President had nothing to do with it at all.
3. It's all technical. The President's statement was an excuse for selling.
4. He's going to run again. He hasn't slammed the door. That's bullish.

Ford Stock Drops Dollar Per Share

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—The new Ford Motor stock went down $1 a share today, but remained more than $2 above the offering price.

Meanwhile, in Detroit, the company said its stock will be listed simultaneously on seven domestic exchanges including New York.

No date was set by the company. However, such listing has been expected in New York about March 1.

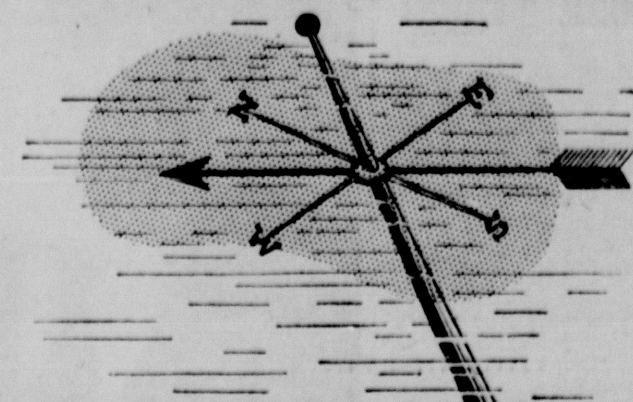

In addition to New York, the company said the stock will be listed on exchanges in Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia-Baltimore, Los Angeles, Midwest (Chicago) and San Francisco.

Trading at 780,000 shares as against 720,000 shares yesterday.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19—Six of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, fired for marrying without permission, have found a champion. Sen. David Croll of Ontario says they

Reds Prepare For Change In Formosa Truce

By J. M. Roberts
Associated Press News Analyst

Various straws in the wind have been suggesting for some time that Red China either intends to attack Quemoy and Matsu islands this spring, or else deliberately create a new period of tension in the Formosa situation as she did last spring.

The sudden outburst of disruptive propaganda by Peiping's representative at the Geneva discussions with the United States adds to the prospect that the stage is being set for some change in the virtual truce which has existed in the Formosa Strait for some time.

Adm. Arthur Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, just back from a world inspection tour, ranks Formosa right up with the Middle East among the chief danger points today. Formosa was one of the points where Secretary Dulles said the United States had been brought to the brink of war only to escape through firm action.

Red Double Talk

That statement still stands, and is a part of the American attitude which brought Wang Ping-nan's outburst at Geneva. The United States, he complained in a maze of double-talk, won't concede Red China's right to attack Formosa.

This recognition is the chief assurance that whatever Peiping may be planning for the spring, it is much more likely to be political and for propaganda purposes than for war. As long as the American fleet is present and America's determination undiminished, a direct Red attack would appear to be most foolish.

The United States, in the Geneva talks, has been trying to get the Reds to eschew the use of force in the dispute. Since no immediate political settlement is in view, this would mean leaving the matter of sovereignty on the list of East-West issues which seem likely to remain unsettled. This was the method used to stop the Korean war after the United Nations had demonstrated that aggression would be resisted.

Won't Break Off

Under other circumstances, the Chinese statement at Geneva would be taken as the signal for the end of the talks. But the United States does not intend to break them off, and Peiping still has its objective of getting American diplomatic recognition and a seat in the United Nations.

The bluster over Formosa may be directed primarily in that direction, rather than toward a settlement of the island's fate, for which the Reds can have little hope. They'd like to be paid for not doing something they can't do.

JAMES B. ROSENFELD, Scranton (right), campaign chairman of the Lackawanna County Unit of the Pennsylvania Division of the American Cancer Society, discusses the red sword of Hope, symbol of the American Cancer Society with Howard Everitt of New York City at a state planning meeting held by the Pennsylvania Division in Harrisburg. Mr. Everitt attended the meeting as the personal representative of Fred Waring, state campaign chairman. The red sword of Hope symbolizes medicine and science. The handle of the sword is formed from what is called a caduceus . . . two serpents, which in classical mythology, represent the healing of the sick and the creativeness of the healthy.

Waring Appoints Ted Rodgers Area Cancer Crusade Leader

TED RODGERS SR., of Scranton, has been appointed 1956 Cancer Crusade chairman for the eight-county Northeast Area of the Pennsylvania Division of the American Cancer Society.

State Campaign Chairman Fred Waring, of Shawnee, announced Mr. Rodgers' appointment yesterday following a top-leadership planning conference held in Harrisburg to organize for the April combined educational and fund-raising campaign.

Chairman Waring announced a $1,440,000 goal for this year's Cancer Crusade. "When the staggering annual toll of 230,000 lives and 8 billion dollar economic cost in the United States is considered, our Pennsylvania goal for 1956 amounts to only a token payment on our debt to our fellow men and our children and grandchildren for whom we are laying the foundation for a cancer-free future," Waring stated.

As chairman for the Northeast Area, Mr. Rodgers will coordinate Cancer Crusade activities in Lackawanna, Susquehanna, Pike, Carbon, Wayne, Luzerne, Monroe and Wyoming Counties. Mr. Rodgers will meet with campaign chairmen for these counties and leaders from twenty-four other counties in the eastern part of the state at a training workshop to be held at Hershey, Jan. 27 and 28.

Mr. Rodgers is the president of White Autocar Agency and of Air-line Petroleum Company of Scranton. He is president of Eschenbach & Rodgers Trucking Co. of Scranton, and is a past president of the Truckers Association of America. Mr. Rodgers is a member of the Board of Directors of Banking Circles.

Fair Board To Discuss Building Plan

NEWFOUNDLAND — Final action on proposed changes in the constitution and discussion of a building program will be the chief items of business to come before the Greene-Dreher Fair Association in the local school Monday at 8:15 p.m.

Constitutional revisions include a change of name to "The Greene-Dreher-Sterling Fair Association" and a new method of electing officers. Under the present set-up, officers are elected by the board of directors; the new amendment proposes to have the officials chosen by a vote of the entire association.

Only one building of four washed away in the August flood was recovered, necessitating the construction of at least one structure to house refreshment facilities.

In calling the meeting, President Carroll Fetherman announced that a grant of $1,000 had been received from the Wayne County Board of Commissioners for the purpose of repairing and rebuilding association property. Pike County commissioners have also been petitioned for aid but no word has been received from that group, Fetherman said.

Tentative dates for the 39th renewal of the event are August 23, 24 and 25, the president said.

MOBILE HOMES are on the UPGRADE

MORE THAN 2,500,000 American home owners can take their vacations this year without even leaving home—they'll take it with them. They're the owners of mobile homes, a big business that reached about $435 million in retail sales in 1955. One of the events that the industry looks forward to is the National Mobile Homes show in Cleveland. On display were 250 mobile homes valued at one million dollars and ranging from a $510 one to some costing over $8,000. One of the newest types is the office on wheels with space for filing cabinets and desks. Another eye-catcher is the two-story one for those who need extra space. There is no pat floor plan or standard set of furnishings that dominate. The furnishings include bright, functional interior decors, streamlined furniture in light woods and black iron and durable corduroys for young married people. Mobile homes include living room, kitchen-dinette, bathroom and one, two or three bedrooms. They range in size from 13 feet to 50 feet or longer. A breakdown of mobile home owners shows that 63 per cent are occupation workers, 20 per cent are in armed forces, 10 per cent retired and the rest are miscellaneous, including units for libraries and showrooms.

Two-story mobile home (right) has four bedrooms, duct heat to every room, hot water heater and even fire alarm. Stairs (left) connect floors.

Note cheerful interior of this modern style living room. Drapes complement the room.

Love Of Church, Personal Affections Blamed In Part For Conflict Within Brooklyn Parish

By George W. Cornell
NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—In a way, a church is like a small town. It is a place of close associations, of old habits and long memories, where life—from birth to death—unfolds in intimate view, where loyalties and jealousies move side by side, in a sort of equalized family tension.

But sometimes the emotional balance shatters and turns the community into warring camps, neighbor against neighbor, with the shared struggles of a lifetime trampled underfoot.

Beyond Belief
Out of such elements this week arose a conflict which rent the heart of a venerable old Brooklyn church, and which erupted into a spectacle of rivalry seldom matched in such an environment.

At sacred communion services in Holy Trinity Episcopal Church last Sunday, two clergymen vied for worshippers, and called—simultaneously—for different readings of Scripture by the congregation. "It was beyond belief," said Lewis G. Reynolds, a retired schoolteacher and long-time parish leader.

"When people's personal differences get mixed up with religion, it seems that all the church teachings of love and compassion and understandings go by the board."

Holy Trinity is an historic, 109-year-old church, whose sandstone Gothic walls and impressive stained glass windows once stood in a quiet, restful area. But now, the city has closed in around it like a flood.

Ancestral Devotion
The church is at the business and civic hub of Brooklyn, not far from Borough Hall, and in the midst of a teeming commercial district.

Yet it has commanded a sort of staid, ancestral devotion. New blood has mingled with the old in the congregation, but many of the old-timers have stayed on.

Families that have long since moved out to quieter neighborhoods still look to Holy Trinity as "their church."

But for seven years, Holy Trinity hasn't had a regular rector. Why?

The usually cited reason is a clash over the "outside" political activities of the Rev. William Howard Melish. But underlying this is a deeper rooted story of personal emotions, time-ingrained ties and parish insularity.

Kept Busy
"For the past few years," said Melish, "I haven't had any time for activities outside the church."

He has occupied the church pulpit, on a kind of makeshift basis, ever since the impasse developed in 1949.

That was when the diocesan bishop, the Rt. Rev. James P. DeWolfe, acting at the request of the then-church vestry, removed Melish's father, the Rev. Dr. John Howard Melish, as rector.

The reason given: that the elder Melish had defended the alleged "outside" left-wing activities of his son, who was serving as his assistant.

The ouster, upheld after a long court feud, caused repercussions in the congregation. Bonds between it and the elder Melish were not easily shaken by ecclesiastical law.

Rector Emeritus
For nearly a half century, he had been their rector. He had baptized, married, counseled and taught most of the living, spoken over the graves of their dead.

Quickly the congregation elected a new vestry that named the elder Melish as rector emeritus, with the right to remain in the rectory, and nominated the son as rector. Bishop DeWolfe declined to approve young Melish's selection.

Thus, for several years the dispute has persisted. Congregational votes generally have favored the Melishes, with seldom a voice being raised about political affairs.

But last week, six of the nine members presently on the church governing body voted to bring in a regular rector, which the bishop would approve.

"Our motive was simply to do something so the church would have a real, duly elected rector," said Reynolds, who took part in the action.

Church Suffers
"We have been, to a large extent, cut off from the diocese, with no representation or cooperation. It has hurt the church and still is hurting it."

It was when Bishop DeWolfe sent a temporary minister, the Rev. Robert K. Thomas, to fill the church pulpit last Sunday that the competitive worship services—led by him and Melish—looked place.

Finally, Thomas walked out. About 40 of the estimated 400 people in the church followed him. The others remained while Melish continued.

From a side pew, his 81-year-old father watched, his hands trembling.

On the surface, questions of church canons and state church incorporation laws are involved, along with the fact that seven new members of the church board are scheduled to be elected in April. Parish and diocesan laws in the Episcopal Church vary somewhat from one area to another, but generally, the church is something like a constitutional monarchy.

with the church board initiating action, subject to the diocesan bishop's approval.

Important Factors
Attorneys for the two sides in the Holy Trinity dispute are at odds over whether a required quorum of the vestry was present when it asked the bishop's approval of a new rector.

This is complicated by the fact there are now two vacancies on the vestry, and alternate requirements for a quorum prevail under differing circumstances.

But behind the legal maneuverings, the crux of the matter, as Reynolds put it, arises from "personal affections, swings of emotion and love for the church."

"These are the important factors," he said.

Cotton Growers Hit

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 19 (AP)—Mexican cotton producers have asked President Ruiz Cortines to ease their tax burdens and find new markets for their financially hard-hit industry. They claim the present 25 per cent tax on cotton is costing them about $4,400,000 a year.

They urged investigation of reported offers by Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia and Poland to buy Mexican cotton under certain conditions.

New Telephone Network Links Signal Corps Installations

A NEW SYSTEM for electronic transmission of orders for Signal Corps equipment and material went into full operation this week at Tobyhanna Signal Depot. A telephone network connects Signal Corps installations at Philadelphia, Decatur, Ill., Lexington, Ky., Sacramento, Cal., and Tobyhanna Signal Corps.

By means of a radio network, thousands of punched electrical accounting machine cards, each of which represents an order for an item of Signal Corps equipment, are placed in a special electronic transmitter in Orleans, France and as the cards run through the machine, they are instantaneously reproduced at Tobyhanna Signal Depot. By the same method via telephone network, the Tobyhanna depot may re-transmit the electrical accounting machine order cards on to Sacramento, or one of the other stations in the network in the event that items are out of stock at Tobyhanna.

Similarly, the other depots may transmit their shortages to Tobyhanna for shipment. In addition to saving many thousands of dollars per year in operating costs, it is estimated that the new system will reduce the time required to furnish supplies to the soldiers in the field by at least 40 per cent. The new system is the second phase of a long range management improvement plan by the Signal Corps and the Tobyhanna depot to make full use of the latest developments in modern electronic data processing and transmission techniques in order to reduce costs and processing time.

Edward Kamens, production specialist and Al Woronowicz, chief of the depot's machine records branch, accomplished most of the local planning for this operation and for still further utilization of the latest in high speed electronic accounting methods.

The Tobyhanna Signal Depot stocks over 100,000 different items of Signal Corps equipment and supplies and ships thousands of orders daily to troops throughout the world.

Hour-Long Hunt Leads To Fire

WOONSOCKET, R.I., Jan. 19 (AP)—Firemen searched for the source of smoke in a business block here for an hour early today and when they found it, they had a $30,000 blaze on their hands.

A patrolman noticed that the night light was not burning in a cafe and thought the cafe might have been broken into. When he smelled smoke, a fire company was called.

Flames burst through the cellar and roared through the entire building which also houses a shoe repair shop, and a tailor shop.

Just Between Us

—by Bobby Westbrook

It seems to me that members of the Historical Society, each year, are called upon to demonstrate their ability to equal their interest in the deeds of the past with their own derring-do in the present. They get the miserablest weather of the winter, usually.

But more comments about the Historical Society tomorrow when I've had time to mull it over. Yesterday I was too intimidated by the weather forecasts to do much mulling. You know, maybe we were better off before the days of radio and television when the weather was something we took as it came instead of worrying about it in advance.

All this fretting reminds me to envy the people in tropical climes.

Orlino Nitrauer writes from Florida that despite the publicity about the cold it suits them fine being able to sit in the yard in blouses and skirts.

Jean Keifer coming home from Florida and Peggy Cramer flying out for a two-week's visit might cross paths enroute, and the Marty Baldwins are arriving home with slides to show Peg of the places she'll be seeing in person by the time they get here.

All this coming and going doesn't make me any more contented with the fact that maybe this fresh storm will making good tracking conditions in the orchard. I'd rather be making tracks myself than following ones something else has made.

Twin Fish Cut Time And Look Handsome

By Cecily Brownstone Associated Press Food Editor

We like seeing double when it comes to baked fish. Instead of preparing one mammoth fish to serve six to eight, we stuffed two smaller species, about two pounds apiece, and found we could bake them in jig time.

If you can find pike at your fish store, do choose it for this recipe; its flavor is so delicate. But if pike is not available, choose another fish suitable for stuffing and baking.

The fish stuffing we are giving you is the moist kind—either commercial sour cream or mayonnaise is used in it. But its distinguishing note is the diced peeled lemon pulp that gives tang. We do not feel tartar sauce is necessary with this stuffed baked fish, but if your family insists on that savory accompaniment, you may want to use the following recipe.

Twin Pike With Lemon Stuffing

Ingredients: 1/4 cup butter or margarine, 1 cup finely diced celery, 1/2 cup finely diced onion, 1 quart soft bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons grated lemon rind, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons paprika, diced membrane-free pulp from 1 large lemon, 1/2 cup commercial sour cream or mayonnaise or mayonnaise-type salad dressing, 2 (about 2 pounds each) pike (cleaned), extra butter (soft).

Method: Melt 1/4 cup butter in a 10-inch skillet over low heat; add celery and onion; cook gently, stirring often, until vegetables are soft. Remove from heat. Add soft bread crumbs, lemon rind, salt, paprika, diced lemon and sour cream or mayonnaise. Mix lightly. Place half the stuffing into the cavity of each fish, amount of stuffing for each fish will be about 2 1/2 cups. Do not skewer fish. Place in a large greased shallow baking pan; rub fish with extra butter (soft). Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake until fish flakes easily with a fork and is opaque—20 minutes more or longer. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Note: To make soft bread crumbs, tear a fresh slice of bread into tiny pieces with fingers or fork. Or cut bread into tiny cubes. Leave crumbs on bread or remove, as desired.

Tartar Sauce
Ingredients: 1/2 cup mayonnaise or mayonnaise-type salad dressing, 1 tablespoon minced capers, 1 teaspoon sweet pickle relish, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, 1/2 teaspoon minced onion, 1/2 teaspoon minced onion.

Method: Mix together the mayonnaise, capers, pickle relish, parsley and onion. Chill. Makes about 1 cup.

More Fish Stories
We like our baked stuffed fish with the head and tail left on. But you may have one or both removed if you like.

When the whole fish is cleaned at your fish dealer's, it will be scaled and the fins will be removed. If the backbone is removed, it must be done so that the back skin of the fish is not cut through.

If you line the bottom of your baking pan with greased aluminum foil, the fish will be easy to remove to a serving platter. A crisp tossed green salad al-

Circle Today

Mary Capelli Circle of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church will meet at 1:30 this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Elton Denning, Thomas St., Stroudsburg, with Mrs. Robert Schell as co-hostess.

I wouldn't exactly call it a coat of armor, but at least it's a preparedness against whatever comes. One of our nimble-witted executives, catching me in a combustible mood on a day that shouldn't have happened to my worst enemy, presented me with a Kieken to wipe my tears and a balloon for blowing off steam. The gift was rather startling at first, but sensible too. After all, a good cry and an uninhibited outburst can be a wonderful safety valve — almost as good as soothing a woman's feelings as a new hat or an unexpected love letter.

"Will you please hold my balloon while I ring up the sale?" Sonia Bachman asked when I handed her a ten cent chocolate bar and a dollar bill. "Fine thing," I commented, "a big girl like you playing with toys." Sonia was, I think, only blowing up the pretty bubbles to advertise our Wyckoff party goods — but it was a complicated procedure. When she began counting back my change, I had to grab Ralph Warner's sleeve and ask him to take over on the balloon holding.

Don't know how I happened to get on the subject of balloons today — but there's this to be said: if you want your child's next "blow-out" to be a bang-up blow-up, we have all the essentials here at Wyckoff's, including tablecloths, napkins, and other paper goods to make entertaining easy.

Don't know what Marion Leedom is doing wandering around right this minute in the A&P parking lot, but there she is, with only a navy blue sweater thrown over her shoulders. Marion, head of our well stocked gift department, is in the market for a smock right now. Seems she had one down in the basement stockroom, and someone ripped it in half to use for a dust rag. Incidentally, if you're in the mood to pretty up your home with some truly beautiful pictures, vases, and bright accessories, now's the time to really visit our center aisle gift shop.

Carl Kohrback reported back on the job yesterday after a shoe-buying jaunt to Philadelphia and New York. Wyckoff's was further represented at the New York accessories show by Edna Harmon, of jewelry; Laura Fabel, of hos of jewelry; Laura Fabel, of hos of jewelry; Beatrice Gorgy, of handbags, and Amy Ellenberger, of buttony-button girl. Also home from the market are Carrie Rusk of sportswear, Margaret LaBar of draperies, and Helen Levy of the girls teens departments. All of this means that any day now new merchandise will begin rolling into the alley at Wyckoff's and thence to the selling floor. The new styles and trends are "mighty pretty" one of our department heads tells me, so by all means keep your eyes on our windows, our ads, and our store in general.

Henry Kresge, manager of Sears, tells me that any minute we'll receive hundreds of new records from at least eight of the leading recording companies. Display racks are ready and waiting, and customers are already lining up awaiting their requests. On yesterday's browse-around I noticed that Johnny Eaton's first Columbia album "College Jazz—Modern" is already stocked. Johnny, as you know, is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Harold Eaton — a local boy whose first touch of success while still a college student, gives us all a nice lift and a pleasant dream for tomorrow.

Writers Workshop Reviews Stories Relating To Storm

MEMBERS OF THE Pocono Mountains Writers Workshop met Wednesday night at the home of President John M. Price, where exercises in a writing course being taught by Mrs. Irving Kiffin, of East Stroudsburg, were submitted and criticized.

The writers were requested to consider the appearance of a city street on a hot day in August and write a sketch sketched to making the reader see the same picture as the writer. Then a sketch was required, the writer sketching in words the changes that would be caused in such a scene by the coming of a heavy storm. If any preferred to substitute a life sketch of some kind for the "Street and Storm" sketch action was permitted.

President Price wrote on the main theme dealing with the descent of the great hurricane of November 1950 on South Stroudsburg. He referred to the normal activities of that day after Thanksgiving as he observed them from his Southside home and wrote with skill and graphic description into the hour when the storm struck and a giant tree near his residence was blown down taking service poles and wires with it.

Fear Complex
Mrs. Fred Hart, of Greentown, combined the storm theme and a personal experience in a brief story that met with warm approval of the group. She told of being extremely nervous during thunderstorms as a child and of having often wished to take refuge in a clothes closet at her home. On the occasion she described, she was returning from market carrying many parcels, when a severe lightning storm came up and it was marked by such unexampled ferocity that her childhood returned. Reaching home she ran to the closet, left her parcels on a couch and took refuge in the darkness among the hanging coats thus satisfying a "fear complex."

Mrs. Joseph Kushner departed from the storm theme and wrote

Greenbrier County Integrates Pupils

LEWISBURG, W. VA., Jan. 19 (AP)—Negro and white students began attending classes together in Greenbrier County schools today with no incidents reported.

When the school board adopted integration in Greenbrier County in the fall of 1954, there were public demonstrations.

A humorous number which the members requested her to amplify in scope, add more comic situations and submit for publication.

Joseph Kushner read the first part of a new story which caught the imagination of the other writers.

Mrs. Mary Herdman also related a personal experience.

Massachusetts Storm

William P. Deering described an August day in Gloucester, Mass., and the coming of a storm when "the wind hauled into a new quarter faster than a brig could swing her yards to set the sails."

Mrs. Kiffin gave out the assignment for the next exercise and read a chapter of an absorbing travel novel she is writing. This chapter dealt with scenes in and around the French department of Fontainebleau in the 1930s and the nerve tension in the republic under the overshadowing German menace.

The next meeting of the workshop will be on the first Wednesday night in February at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kushner, Broad St., South Stroudsburg.

Stroudsburg Slated To Entertain Lehigh Valley High Quintet

Mountaineers Seek First Favorable Nod

STROUDSBURG and Lehigh Valley High School, with only one victory between them, will clash in a Lehigh Valley League basketball game on the W. Main St. court today. The junior varsity encounter is slated for 6:45 p.m. and the varsity struggle at approximately 8:15 p.m.

Lehigh Valley will invade Stroudsburg sporting a record of one victory and four defeats, while the Mountaineers have failed to register a favorable decision in the Lehigh Valley League thus far this season.

The Indians took the measure of Catawauqua for their only win, while Stroudsburg doesn't stack up against the Rough Riders until next Tuesday, also on the W. Main St. court.

Ben Jones, Lehigh Valley coach, is a graduate of Stroudsburg High and East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, and at one time lived in Stroudsburg.

Mountains League Basketball Game Halted By Darkness

POCONO PINES.—The lights went out on a Pocono Mountains Basketball League game last night and it may take days or even weeks to find out who actually won the contest. The tension is greater than normally would be the case because neither of the rivals had won a game prior to last night.

The entire story began when the lights went out in the Tobyhanna Township High School gymnasium, with two minutes and 47 seconds remaining in a game between Po-

Helfand Blasts NBA Action In Speech

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Julius Helfand, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, tonight took a swing at the National Boxing Association, calling it a "sheer hypocrisy" and saying "they might as well not have met at all."

Helfand leveled his blast at the NBA in a speech at the 30th annual dinner of the Boxing Writers Association—rising to make his address immediately after Lou Radzienda, president of the NBA, had completed his own speech.

It was an NBA resolution which permits a boxer to sign for a fight himself when his manager is under suspension which drew Helfand's scathing criticism.

The resolution was adopted in Chicago last Saturday, along with two others in which the NBA pledged its support to Helfand's anti-racket campaign.

The latter resolutions were, however, "completely nullified" by the third, Helfand charged. "The (NBA) might as well not have met at all. It was sheer hypocrisy, nothing else."

By passing the resolution, Helfand continued, "they in effect blinded their eyes. You know that after a fight, the fighter will go back to his hotel and whack up the purse with his suspended manager."

After a considerable amount of time spent in trying to find the difficulty failed to uncover the trouble, it was decided by both teams to submit the final ruling to the league at its next meeting.

Pocono Lake used a huge 30-12 advantage at the end of the first period as a stepping stone to its big lead and then held a 55-34 edge at halftime.

Kresgeville came back with a 24-23 edge in the third round and enjoyed a 22-17 scoring bulge in the last quarter before the lights went out.

Pocono Lake enjoyed a 33-32 advantage in field goals and connected on 29 of 37 charity tosses. Kresgeville found the range on 16 of 27 charity tosses.

Sherwood Smith, Kresgeville, led all the scorers with 31 points, while teammate Floyd "Red" Kresge was next in line with 24. "Buddy" Judge and Paul Gravel led Pocono with 21 counters each, while Bush finished with 20.

Judge made good on 13 of 14 charity tosses, while Bush found the range on 10 of 13 free throws.

Allentown Faces Trouble

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19 (AP)—Campaign for scholastic basketball titles continue in earnest this week-end with games in five regions holding the spotlight.

Topping the schedule for Friday games is the important clash between Chester and Lower Merion in the Suburban One League of Dist. 1.

Chester, the defending eastern champion and runnerup for the state title, is going after its 13th consecutive win this season against no defeats.

If the Clippers can get by the powerful Lower Merion club they stand a strong chance of once again getting into the eastern finals. Last time out, Chester belted Norristown 76-67, while Lower Merion was punishing Cheltenham 71-36.

Defending Champ

The defending eastern champs crowned Cheltenham last Friday 90-32. Comparing the two victories, Chester rules a heavy favorite over Lower Merion, but statistics are expected to go out the window in the Friday tussle.

Another undefeated Eastern team, Allentown, runs into rugged opposition against Hazleton Friday. The Canaries are rated a prime favorite for East Penn and Dist. 11 crowns, but Hazleton is a long-time bitter rival.

Allentown showed frightening power in its Tuesday game, winning its 13th straight 100-72 from Pottsville. The same night Hazleton dumped Easton, 83-72.

The prime game is on tap in the Central Penn loop when defending champion Reading — the current league leader — collides with always rugged Steelton.

Asks Repeal

Helfand, who just this week destroyed the Boxing Guild of New York following a nine-month investigation during which he found the group "monopolistic," called upon Radzienda to repeal the resolution.

Radzienda, a member of the Illinois Commission, had no immediate comment of Helfand's biting remarks.

Helfand was as flattering to the other two NBA resolutions as he was critical of the third. He lauded the resolution which pledged support to his "clean up" of the sport and the resolution which banned anyone from practicing in one state while unlicensed in another.

Corne KO's Davis

Souchak Sets Hot Pace In Caliente Golf

TIJUANA, Mex., Jan. 19 (AP)—Big Mike Souchak, 28, led a host of par wreckers through the first round of the $12,500 Caliente golf tournament today, shooting a seven under par 65 the first time he played the Tijuana County Club course.

The one-time Duke University football end got here too late to play a practice round, but said he didn't think he could have played any better had he seen the par 36-36-72, 7,207-yard layout.

He toured the course in 34-31 for his 65, breaking the course record by one stroke, and declared: "Make no mistake, this is a real tough course. It plays long and it will play longer when they stretch the tees out."

Better Round

He added this was a better round than he played when he shot a 33-27-60 in the Texas Open in San Antonio last year "because this is a tougher course."

Souchak's tremendous round, in which he was over par on only one hole when he three-putted the fifth green, sent him into a two stroke lead.

Former Amateur star Frank Stranahan, with 35-32, Rod Funseth, Spokane amateur, 34-33, and Ralph Blomquist, Glendale, Calif., club professional, with 33-34, were tied behind Souchak at 67.

Stroudsburg Grid Mentor To Attend National Clinic

JOHN WHITEHEAD, head football coach at Stroudsburg High School, will attend the National Football Clinic to be held in Atlantic City, it was decided at a meeting of the Stroudsburg High School Athletic Association last night. The meeting was held in the high school building.

The association granted Whitehead $100 to attend the famed clinic which will be held in Convention Hall on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, March 12, 13, 14 and 15.

Other members of the coaching staff will have expenses paid at the Eastern Pennsylvania Scholastic Coaches Clinic to be held at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 18, 19, 20 and 21.

Inventory

Whitehead, along with Mahlon Serfass and John DeVivo, presented a thorough inventory of football equipment and the report received warm praise from officials present at the meeting.

A budget of $4,452.85 was adopted for next football season and the association reported a total of $2,209.61 in the treasury as of December 31, 1955. Bills in the amount of $375.61 were ordered paid last night.

Plans for repairs to the flood damaged baseball field were aired at last night's meeting, but official action will depend upon the outcome of the next school board meeting.

T. Manning "Cap" Curtis, chairman of the association, ruled over last night's gathering.

Turner To Face LaBua In Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—Experienced Gil Turner, 25, of Philadelphia and young Jackie LaBua, 23, of East Meadow, N. Y., meet for the second time in a little over a month in a radio-television 10-rounder at War Memorial Auditorium tomorrow night. LaBua subs for virus-stricken Gene Fullmer.

Although the battle-tested Turner won only by a split decision here on Dec. 14, he is a 3-1 choice to make it two straight over the handsome LaBua.

Claim

Jackie says he'll do better tomorrow, claiming that he was rusty the last time. The strongly built youngster had only two other fights in 1955. His overall record is 25-7.

Turner has a 49-10-1 record with 33 knockouts. LaBua has stopped only three rivals.

The bout will be broadcast and telecast (10 p.m., EST, NBC radio-TV.)

Russian Skater Races To Victory

DAVOS, Switzerland, Jan. 19 (AP)—Powerful Oleg Goncharenko of Russia raced to a record victory in the rigorous 5,000 meter event today to continue the Soviets' domination of the Swiss international speed skating championships. America's finest skaters were out of the running.

The big Russian sped under the wire in 7 minutes, 59.4 seconds, clipping 5.9 seconds off the track mark set in 1953 by Holland's Kees Broeckman.

Over Record

The winning time was well over current world record of 7:45.6 set by Goncharenko's teammate, Boris Shilkov, at Alma Ata in Russia last year. Shilkov did not race today.

The smashing triumph, following on the heels of Russia's 1-2-3 finish in the 500 meter sprint yesterday, established the Soviet skaters as heavy favorites for Gold Medals in the winter Olympic Games starting next Thursday at Cortina D'Ampezzo, Italy.

Pistons Edge Hawks

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 19 (AP)—The Fort Wayne offense, bogged down through most of the second half, came to life in the fourth quarter tonight as the Pistons defeated St. Louis 90-83 in a National Basketball Association game.

Wall Cards 143 Strokes

CALL, Columbia, Jan. 19 (AP)—Chick Harbert of Northville, Mich., shot a two-under-par 69 today to take the undisputed lead in the Columbia Open golf tournament with a 36-hole total of 139.

Bob Toski of Livingston, N. J., moved into second place with a 141 total.

Third Spot

One stroke behind were Raul Posse, Argentine, who was the yesterday with Harbert for the first round lead, and George Bayer of Cincinnati.

Art Wall of Pocono Manor, Pa., followed with 143.

Coaches Move To New Positions

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19 (AP)—Joe McCune, football coach at Redstone High School since 1950, tonight was named head coach at North Braddock's Scott High. He succeeds Johnny Reed who resigned recently.

Meanwhile, at Redstone it was announced that John Kupets has quit as basketball coach. He will accept a post in the California (Pa.) High School as a commercial teacher.

Smallwood Gains Nod

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Hardy Smallwood, 157½, Brooklyn, scored an unanimous eight-round decision over Lou Stanick, 157, Youngstown, Ohio, in the feature fight at Sunnyside Garden tonight.

RILEY

Sports Editor

EVAN REESE, East Stroudsburg High's injured football player, is now at home and rapidly battling back the road to recovery. Evan spent nine weeks in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital and is overjoyed at being home. He is making excellent progress and anxious to be up and around once again. Reese can bend his knee and everyone concerned with the case is pleased with his progress.

The E. Brown St. resident must return to the hospital for a check-up in about 10 days and then for another operation in about four months. The next bit of surgery, number seven on the list, will be on the left ankle. Reese has two prized possessions near the bed in his room. One is the football autographed by members of the East Stroudsburg High squad and the other is a football autographed by members of the Penn State grid machine.

Evan received a card from Marty Baldwin, well known local resident who is touring California, and it was autographed by many of the leading football coaches in the business. King Beers made good on 12 of 15 shots from the floor while racking up 27 points against Hellertown last Tuesday. The East Stroudsburg High team played the finest game of its scholastic career. East Stroudsburg High School football uniforms must be turned in to officials immediately.

Ray Steele, former baseball and basketball star at East Stroudsburg High, will pitch for Abilene, Tex., of the class "B" Big State League next season. Virtually every member of the now defunct Lancaster club has been transferred to Abilene by the parent Kansas City A's. It is this reporter's opinion that Ray's brilliant late season pitching for Lancaster last year earned him at least a shot at "A" ball next spring.

Ben Jones, who will bring his Lehigh Valley High cage machine to town tonight, is expected to make news in one of two spots in Pennsylvania before the end of the present month. Jones is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School and East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, Stroudsburg. He has two more chances to win a first half basketball game in the Lehigh Valley League. The Mountaineers are home with Lehigh Valley tonight and Catawba on Tuesday.

Steve Honzo, one of the officials in the Stroudsburg-Emmaus basketball game last Tuesday worked the recent Niagara-St. Bonaventure College tussle in Buffalo. Hazelton has lost two of its top sports writers in the past six months. Stan Benjamin departed for the Scranton Times last summer and Stan Caughey has now joined with the same paper. The Monroe County League will hold a special meeting next week, at which time postponed games will be rescheduled.

Bushkill's baseball club, a member of the Pocono Mountains League, will hold a reorganization meeting at "Rick" DePue's Restaurant tomorrow at 8 p.m. Look Haven's wrestling team has set a record with 18 straight Pennsylvania State Teachers College Conference dual-match victories, according to information forwarded to this column by Merle Agnello, publicity director for the conference.

A new story is expected to break on the sale of Glen Brook Country Club in the very near future. Larry Souder, Polk center, may be forced from the Monroe County League basketball because of an injury to his teeth. Don Kennedy, St. Peter's College cage coach, is now blaming the officials for the forfeit loss to Scranton last Sunday afternoon. The officials are Mike Weber and Steve Majczan, both well known within the confines of Monroe County.

Construction will begin very shortly on the spacious new golf shop at Shawnee Inn and Country Club. At least one player shift is in the works of the Pocono Mountains Basketball League at the present time. Tom Somers, president of the Varsity "S" Association, has returned home after a visit of a couple of days in New York.

Al Billy, former football star and wrestler at Northampton High, has passed his Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association examination as a wrestling official and is now ready for assignment. Bill Jones and Jack Goepfert, both former athletes on Normal Hill, are going great guns in the scholastic football coaching ranks. Jones, at Mahanoy Township, has run up 21 straight wins, while Goepfert's Hummelstown crew has won 20 straight contests.

East Stroudsburg Plays Host To Bangor Tonight

Keat To Lead Slaters Into Action

STOPPING streaks will be the aim of both East Stroudsburg and Bangor High Schools when their basketball squads clash on the N. Courtland St. hardwood today. Junior varsity activity is on the agenda for 6:30 p.m. and the varsity contest for approximately 8 p.m.

East Stroudsburg will be out to halt a streak of two straight setbacks, while Bangor will attempt to break into the win column after suffering four straight setbacks at the hands of circuit opposition. Bangor will feature the brilliant Don Keat at one of the forward positions as an added highlight to tonight's contest. Keat, who has shattered virtually every scoring record in Bangor basketball history, is currently setting the individual scoring pace in the Lehigh-Northampton League.

Hot Hand
Keat has accounted for 53 field goals, 58 successful foul shots and 164 points in five league games to date. The senior sharpshooter is currently sporting an average of 32.8 markers a game in league play.

Bangor's ace forward tallied 39 points against Coplay on Tuesday of this week as the Slaters went down to an 86-70 reversal.

Glen Heard will flank Keat in the forward section, while Jim Warrick and Ed Traves divide the center duties. "Jabby" Williams and Gary Strauss will handle the guard duties.

Coach John Heard announced last night that Dale Miller, Jim Freeman and Bob Butz are reserves almost certain to see action.

East Stroudsburg will counter with the same lineup that has opened recent games, it was revealed yesterday by Coach Dick Forster.

Starters
King Beers, fresh from a 27-point performance against Hellertown, and Jim Kimler will man the forward posts and Co-Captain Danny Marvin will be at center. Co-Captain Dick Gray and Dale Metzgar will man the guard stations.

Harry Miller and Bob Notz are East Stroudsburg reserves virtually certain of seeing action against the Slaters.

East Stroudsburg closes the first half of the Lehigh-Northampton League schedule at Parkland next Tuesday, while Bangor closes its first half slate against Nazareth, at Bangor.

A list of the top 10 scorers in the Lehigh-Northampton League follows:

	G	FG	F	Total
Keat, Bangor	53	58	164
W. H. Nazareth	54	57	115
Schneider, Hellertown	47	43	137

Basilio Wins Award

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (P)—Carmen Basilio, world welterweight champion, received the Edward J. Neil plaque as "fighter of the year" for 1955 tonight at the 30th annual dinner of the Boxing Writers Assn.

Presentation
Basilio, the rugged slugger from Canastota, N.Y., who won the title from Tony DeMarco and defended it successfully by knocking out DeMarco in his home town of Boston, accepted the plaque from Murray Rose, Associated Press writer. The plaque was named for Neil, former AP boxing writer who was killed while covering the revolutionary war in Spain.

Bob Murphy, unbeaten Boston welter, was crowned "rookie of the year" in 1955 with heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano doing the honors.

Three Matches Slaters

THREE matches are set for the American Legion Auxiliary League today at the Pocono Bowling Center today at 9 p.m. Schedule follows:

Alleys one and two—Five Aces vs. Nite Owls.

Alleys three and four—Bell Ringers vs. Woodpeckers.

Alleys seven and eight—Pixies vs. Missleers.

Monroe County League Cagers In Three Games

COOLBAUGH, number one quintet in the standings of the Monroe County Basketball League, will attempt to put more space between itself and the remainder of the circuit today when all six clubs clash on three different fronts.

In each case the junior varsity activity will get underway at 7:15 p.m., while the main events are booked for approximately 8:30 p.m.

Coolbaugh, currently rolling along with six victories and one defeat against circuit opposition, will attempt to continue its winning habit against last place Tobyhanna Township. The game will be played on Coolbaugh's home court in Tobyhanna.

Tobyhanna has failed to win a game in seven trips to the hardwood against circuit opposition

thus far this season.

Second place Pocono, battling to overcome Coolbaugh's advantage, battles a tough Polk squad on the latter's home court in Kregeville.

Pocono has won four and lost two games to date, while Polk has won three and lost the same number of outings. Polk is currently tied for third place with

Barrett and Chestnut Hill.

Barrett and Chestnut Hill will settle at least a portion of the number three standing today

when they battle each other on the Barrett hardwood in Canadensis.

Both Chestnut Hill and Barrett have divided six starts at this date. Chestnut Hill is the defending champion in the Monroe

County League.

The second third of the current campaign comes to an end

next Tuesday when Chestnut Hill plays at Pocono, Barrett invades

Tobyhanna Township and Coolbaugh appears at Polk.

W. H. Stiff, 87, Dies At Mount Pocono

MOUNT POCONO — William Nelson Stiff, 87, died at his Sterling Road home at 3:25 a.m. yesterday after a year's illness.

He had served as a water foreman for the Lackawanna Railroad for 41 years before his retirement. Prior to coming to Mount Pocono 25 years ago he had lived in Scranton.

Snow, Cold Weather Grip New York City, On Fourth Day Of Fuel Truckers' Strike

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP) — A deep freeze rolled glacierlike across some New York City homes today in the fourth day of a fuel truck drivers' strike. Many big apartment houses were out of fuel or close to it.

An emergency office at police headquarters was swamped with complaints. New phone lines had to be installed.

Electric heaters and gas ovens burned in tens of thousands of homes as room temperatures dropped.

A forecast of snow and below freezing weather threatened to heighten what the New York Real Estate Board has called "a catastrophe in the making."

Truce Hopes Fade
Hopes began to fade for a quick truce in the bitter wage-pension-welfare strike of 3,000 Teamsters.

Gertrude, died four years ago.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. James Kelley, Mount Pocono; a grandson; a granddaughter; four great-grandchildren; one brother, Harry Stiff of Tobyhanna.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. at Lanterman funeral home, Rev. Edgar Hersh will officiate. Interment will be made in St. Paul's Cemetery, East Swiftwater. Friends may call at the funeral home from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Sunday.

Union truck drivers against 300 coal and oil distributors.

A new package offer from the dealers was turned down by the union shortly before Mayor Robert F. Wagner summoned the Teamsters negotiating committee to City Hall. The mayor said he wanted a fill-in on the current status of peace talks.

However, prospects quickly brightened again when union negotiators said they thought the dispute could be settled tonight. They claimed they have new proposals that are not too far from the dealers' latest offer.

"Unless you can get together and settle this matter," Wagner told the union men, "I will be forced to take emergency measures."

Package Offer
The dealers' negotiating committee agreed to remain at readiness throughout the night, if need be, to try to reach a settlement. Wagner planned dinner at home, then a return to City Hall for a vigil throughout the evening. The union met during the day to consider a new 27½-cent-an-hour package offer. Seven to nine cents would go toward pensions. The remainder would be split between wages and welfare benefits on any formula the union wished. The drivers currently average $2.40 an hour. The latest offer was 7½ cents better than the 20-cent package offered by the dealers when the strike began last Sunday midnight. The union originally was reported to have asked a 25-cent-an-hour package. However, earlier in the week it revised its demands into what it called a 39-cent-an-hour package. The employers said the new demands would cost 47½ cents an hour.
